It's no longer about the "why". It's the beginning of the "how".
What do relevance and relationships look like?

A Conference in partnership with Dr. Willard R. Daggett and the International Center for Leadership in Education (ICLE)

- Keynote by Bill Daggett
- Sessions by Model Schools in Dr. Daggett's national network of schools with data that documents the impact of the changes they've implemented
- Role-alike breakfast
- Designed for school teams
- Mike Flanagan, State Superintendent of Public Instruction

Effective, sustained change requires collaboration. To that end, this conference is designed to provide opportunities to:

1. Stimulate thinking about high school design to promote:
 - Successful implementation of rigorous high school standards.
 - Relevant high school academic study for each learner.
 - The necessary relationships to foster academic success.
2. Understand strategies practiced by model high schools.
3. Create a supportive and collaborative network among those partners that deliver secondary education in Michigan.

When forming school teams, consider leadership from the following roles who have the power, will, and mindset to lead critical changes/make needed changes: school improvement team, career and technical education, administrators, teachers, board of education members, ISDs, counselors, special educators, transition coordinators
